On reading this, I find I am mistaken in supposing it would do for the Bell. Though it was the proof of Aristotle's movement & not talk about the proof.

I copy from the N.Y. Eve. Post, Bryant's paper, a paragraph which may interest you. In the post of Feb. 4 the Editor's leading article has cognizance of the recent article in the Edinburgh on the Papers, calling it a comprehensive & forcible article. Besides this, in the same paper are two Col's of extracts, favouring commentary & commendation.

a credit to his Colour.

"We were not aware yesterday when we commented upon the very able & interesting article in the Edinburgh Review that it was written by a Runaway Slave. The ability, real information & moderate tone of the article, as well as the clearness & correctness of its style, would do honour to any writer. It is a high honour to his people that a coloured man thus takes his place among the contributors to the first of the English Reviews."

I should have sent
these two Nos of the "Jour"
